C. L. HERRING, Manufacturer of LIGHTNING RODS, MILWAUKEE, WIS. THE ANNUAL destruction of life and property by thunder storms has for years past given increased interest to the subject of Lightning Rods, and it is important that citizens should avail themselves of this means of protection for life and property. The value and efficacy of the Lightning Rod does not consist wholly in conducting the Electric bolt from the building after it has leapt from the cloud, although this alone is sufficient to commend it to general use. Its chief value and efficacy consists in its power to prevent such explosions. It operates silently by tapping or drawing off the electric fluid from the advancing thunder cloud and thus by causing it to rise as it rolls past averting the danger. It is essential that the laws which regulate the action of the electric fluid should be duly considered, both in their construction and erection. The Rods I propose to furnish are constructed on true scientific principles. By means of screws connecting the parts together in a brass nut they are rendered as perfect as wire, and never by accident become insulated, as when they are united by hooks. Their diameter is sufficient to conduct the greatest thunderbolt without fusion. The supports of the rod being furnished with glass insulators, all discharge of the electric fluid laterally into the house or anywhere except the earth is prevented. It is important in order to reap the full benefit of the Lightning Rod, that they should be erected, so as to distribute their points on the top of the building to be protected with due reference to the sphere of their attractive and protective power, which is generally estimated should be horizontally the distance of twice their hight.

Great Occasion — The "Unterrified" in Council.

We beg of our readers not to forget that the great ratification meeting comes off at Military Hall, this evening. We shall certainly be there and shall be happy to hear our democratic friends relate their experience. We notice hand-bills posted up about the city, appealing to the patriotism of the democracy to turn out en masse to listen to the burning eloquence of "distinguished speakers from various parts of the State," and catch the glowing inspiration as it "falls in pompous sentences" from their lips.

N. B.—The candidate for Governor is expected to give a history of the School Fund. It will doubtless be an interesting chapter. It may be related, too, how Barstow "come it" over Smith.

Railroad Case.

It will be remembered that this case was tried last week and the Jury could not agree on a verdict. A new trial was had yesterday, and resulted in a verdict of $40 damages for the plaintiffs.

It seems that Luther May was employed by Messrs. Davis to go over the M. & M. R. R. to get passengers to carry from the Railroad Depot to the boat—paying full fare for riding on the cars—and he was ejected at Power's Mill, though he behaved perfectly orderly, disturbing no one.

The justification set up by the Superintendent for the ejectment, was, that about the 1st of May last a season arrangement was made with Mr. Oakley, to carry passengers with their baggage from the Depot to the boat for 25 cents each—that this was necessary to avoid confusion and delay, which would prevent the passengers from getting to the boat in season. The Superintendent seems to feel a great deal of solicitude about the welfare of his passengers all the way through to New York, and evidently imagined that Messrs. Davis' men were disorderly and riotous in their conduct, and would perhaps abuse or impose upon his passengers—hence his extensive protection.

It appears further that Messrs. Davis offered to carry passengers for 10 cents—two-fifths of the sum the Superintendent had decided they should pay—and it was altogether too cheap; besides, Messrs. D. might not get them to the boat in season, not being able to keep very smart horses. The Superintendent is decidedly a progressive—he systemizes everything to perfection, and his next new move will probably be to contract with some company at a stipulated price to carry all the freight brought in by the cars to the different Warehouses in the city.

It strikes us that it is decidedly outside of the legitimate business of a Railroad Superintendent to attempt to authoritatively intermeddle with the transportation of passengers after they leave his road. Still, we may not look at the subject in a true light. At all events, we do not believe it is the proper province of a R. R. Superintendent to use his position to build up monopolies which are entirely disconnected from the affairs of the Railroad Company.

Explanation.

The editor of the Wisconsin interposes the plea of ignorance for publishing an article that appeared originally in this paper and crediting it to a Cincinnati paper, by declaring that he never saw the article until it appeared in the Cincinnati paper. While we admit the validity of his excuse, we confess that it appears passing strange to us, that an article of that description, from one of his city cotemporaries, could have escaped his keen observations, especially as it was copied and commented upon by a majority of the journals of the State; and add to this the fact—as the columns of the Wisconsin abundantly prove—that Mr. CRAMER looks through his exchanges with the closest scrutiny, and the improbability of his explanation is so much increased that it is hardly credible. We admire, however, the judgment of the editor of the Wisconsin in deciding that the article was ably written, and would be interesting to his readers.

We entertain no feelings of "spite" against the editor of the Wisconsin; in fact, we really pity him for his short-comings, and especially for his late exhibition of characteristic "littleness," in publishing garbled reports of a speech made in New York by the senior editor of this paper.

Whig Convention.

The following is the ticket presented by the Madison Whig Convention. It is composed of men of fair talents and good integrity, so far as we know:

Governor—Henry S. Baird.
Lt. Governor—Bertine Pinkney.
Secretary of State—J. A. Hadley.
Treasurer—James Maxwell.
Attorney General—Orsamus Cole.
Bank Controller—B. F. Pixley.
Superintendent—J. G. McMynn.
State Prison Commissioner—Elisha Starr.

There were in all 27 regularly-chosen delegates, and four others who were admitted by the Convention to act for certain unrepresented Districts, who took part in the deliberations. On an informal ballot Gov. Farwell was re-nominated for Governor by a vote of 20 to 9, and a committee was appointed to inform him of his nomination; but as he could not be found, the Convention proceeded to make out the rest of the ticket. After completing their ticket and passing a series of resolutions, the committee found the Governor, when he gave them to understand that he should not accept the nomination. The Convention then nominated H. S. Baird for Governor.

In favor of an economical administration of the affairs of both the State and National Government—a faithful adherence to the limitations of power as prescribed by the Constitution—liberal appropriations by Congress for the important rivers and the harbors on the sea coast and lake shores—the protection of American industry, by discriminating duties on foreign imports—a thorough system of retrenchment in city, town, county and State expenditures.

The Convention also resolved that it is the duty of the people of this State, to sustain their own institutions, and give no countenance to any evasion of our own law by the introduction of any system of Banking, lessening the security of the bill-holder, or defrauding the State of taxes imposed for the privileges conferred by its provisions.

This is a palpable hit at the Sentinel's pet Bank—the Atlanta.

The two subjoined resolutions—adopted to catch gulls—we copy in full:

Resolved, That we are opposed to the extension of slavery over territories now free, or the enactment of any laws imposing involuntary servitude, except for crime.

Resolved, That we will support all the provisions of the Constitution, and all laws of Congress passed on the subject of slavery, and declared constitutional by the judicial tribunals of the country; Nevertheless, we deem it the unquestionable right of every citizen to canvass the merits of every enactment, and if found to be unjust, oppressive or of doubtful expediency, to advocate their modification or repeal; and deny the authority of any Convention to decree the finality of any law whose provisions are in opposition to long established convictions of right, and repeated expressions of sentiment.

The series closes by the adoption of one of the Hubbell resolutions which the Hunker Convention rejected—so they have probably secured the aid and influence of the Hubbell junto. It will help the ticket amazingly!

WELL SPOKEN.—The Boston News has the following emphatic comments on the recent bloody slave-hunt at Wilkesbarre, Pa. It is no unmistakable indication of the feeling of the masses, when an independent, neutral, city press speaks out in such terms. The supporters of the infamous fugitive act will yet have to hide their heads in shame:

"The admirers of the fugitive slave law will be gratified by the account here presented of their favorite sport, as written by an eye-witness to the Tribune. As it is one of the legitimate fruits of the law, about which so much has been said, it is worth recording, and still more worth reading. It presents three interesting features of American character—

1. The more than fiendish conduct of the slave hunter.

2. The glorious heroism of the hunted slave, who, with a noble American heart in his bosom, preferred death to slavery, and afforded one of the finest illustrations of heroism ever presented.

3. The dastardly cowardice of the hundreds who witnessed a single man struggling for life and liberty, against an unequal force, without daring to assist him, because he was a fugitive slave!

We would like to see those Southern bloodhounds try their hands at the same game in Boston; they would find the weakest member of the Boston Vigilance Committee, despite their revolvers, ready to fight and fall by the side of such a hero as the slavish cowards of Wilksbarre deserted. Here, Shadrach was rescued, and Sims would have been, had not Tukey and the Mayor stolen him away at night, while the friends of liberty were gathering strength for, as they supposed, a coming contest."

What do the Sentinel, Wisconsin and News say of this case? They have eulogized Capt. Ingraham for his righteous heroism. But of this and similar fruits of the fugitive slave act—under the circumstances, worse even than Austrian despotism—they have never a word to say! "Poor creeturs!" having become the slaves of slave-hunting parties, and sunk into the cringing, sycophantic lickspittles of the slave power, and being permitted to bark only when the slaveholders loosen their muzzles, they can't be expected to show any humanity or feeling for the home-crushed, murdered fugitives! How can they? Baltimore has gagged them.

WHIG NOMINATIONS.—As we anticipated, the Whig Convention for the second time offered Governor Farwell the nomination, and urged the offer through a committee of solicitation, composed of the Governor's intimate friends. The appliances were unsuccessful; the Governor could not nor would not again sacrifice an immense private business to the mere personal desire of party friends to defeat a regular democratic nomination—a matter which he feels as little interested in as any man in the State. We think that as a mere question of policy, the Governor has acted well. As a personal friend of Mr. Farwell we rejoice in his decision. He now retires from a high position which he never sought, with the confidence and respect of hosts of friends, of all political parties.—Madison Argus.

New York State Convention.

The following ticket was nominated by the "hards" at Syracuse on Tuesday evening last. The "softs," led by John Van Buren, adjourned until Wednesday, and withdrew, taking no part in the proceedings, and have probably before this time nominated a separate ticket. The Convention was a scene of confusion, and Gen. Ward while speaking was menaced by a bully from New York with a drawn dirk:

For Secretary of State—G. W. Clinton, of Erie.
Attorney General—James T. Brady, of New York.
Controller—James E. Cooley, of Richmond.
State Engineer and Surveyor—J. D. Fay, of Rochester.
State Treasurer—Winslow C. Watson, of Essex.
Canal Commissioner—John C. Mather, of Rensselaer.
State Prison Inspector—Milas W. Bennet, of Onondaga.
Judge Court of Appeals (long term)—C. H. Ruggles, of Dutchess.
Judge Court of Appeals (short term)—Hiram Denio, Oneida.
Clerk, Court of Appeals—S. S. Bowne, of Otsego.

☞ Friday evening, Sept. 9th, George H. Dodge, President of the Manchester and Lawrence Railroad, upon arriving at Manchester, was robbed of his carpet bag containing $15,000 in money and railroad bonds. The bag was found, Sunday morning, in Concord, behind a door at the railroad station, robbed of its contents. A man and woman have been arrested on suspicion of being the thieves.

☞ The anniversary of Perry's victory on Lake Erie, Sept. 10th, was celebrated with great spirit at Newport, R. I. The public buildings were decorated with flags and banners, and the steamboat Perry went on an excursion with a large company of people.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—The steamer Fashion, en route to Green Bay, was struck by lightning between Racine and this port, night before last. A passenger was struck, and his clothes slightly burned. The mast and wheel of the boat were somewhat injured.

Indians Coming Back.—The Dodge county Gazette learns that 200 or 300 Indians, who were removed from that County two years ago, are making their way back, and that last week they were at the Blue Mounds—25 miles west of Madison.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday last, a little boy about two years old, son of William Worden, living two miles north of Juneau, Dodge Co., came to his death by having a fence rail fall upon him while trying to climb on to the fence.

TEMPERANCE CANDIDATE.—A Mass Convention of the citizens of Fond du Lac Co., favorable to the passage of a Prohibitory Liquor Law, was held at Fond du Lac on Saturday last, and Wm. Starr, of Ceresco, was nominated for the Senate.

☞ The Madison Argus says that no one ever seconded the motion for the adoption of the Hubbell resolutions, introduced by Lt. Gov. Beall, at the late Democratic Convention—they fell still-born.

☞ The Free Soil State Central Committee of Ohio have placed Goodsil Buckingham upon their ticket as candidate for the office of Lieut. Governor, in the place of Judge Bissell, who declined.

Agricultural Society.—The citizens of the different towns of Jefferson county met at Hebron, on the 10th inst., and organized an Agricultural Society, and adopted a constitution and by-laws to govern it.

WHIG PARTY OF MILWAUKEE.—There was not a delegate to the late Whig Convention at Madison, from this city. Is there a Whig party among us?

FIRE.—Over $50,000 worth of property was destroyed at Michigan City yesterday, in the business part of the town. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

☞ A game of Cricket was to come off between the Pittsburgh and Cleveland Clubs at the latter place, on the 15th inst.

☞ The New York Annual Fair for the American Institute will be opened in Castle Garden on the 1st of October.

☞ There are now about 140 students at the Lawrence University, at Appleton, and the number is rapidly increasing.

☞ A County Agricultural Fair will be held at Sheboygan on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

ROSENDALE PLANK ROAD.—This work is progressing finely. The track is laid out as far as the crossing of the West Branch—some 5 miles; and from the openings east of Rosendale, eastward some 2 or 3 miles, leaving an interval of some two miles unfinished, but which is grubbed and partly graded.—Fond du Lac Union.

☞ The Peytona steamer is doing a very fair business this season. At no time heretofore has the travel on our lake been so large, or the freighting so extensive.—Ib.

A "Sixpenny savings bank" has been started in Cleveland.

CHAPTER VIII.

Mrs. Wentworth was sitting in her private boudoir, reading an interesting book, but her mind was not on it. A ring at the door aroused her from her abstraction. "I wonder who it can be?" thought she. "I am in no plight to see company. It may be some one who cares not for me beyond external influences, and for whom I have not a spark of sympathy. O, this artificial life! I long for a free spirit-life, where I can exercise spontaniety of emotion and feeling. I am like a tree, which turns its branches toward the source whence it derives its support, but is confined by its roots to the dark earth. I would I were a lovely songster of the grove, then I could nestle in the petals of some fragrant flower, and roam the wide earth o'er."

A servant ushered into the parlor Mrs. Ramsay, and Mrs. Wentworth went down to meet her.

"Good morning, Mrs. Wentworth; how do you do? I am delighted to see you looking so well. I have been trying for several days to call to see you."

The usual civilities are passed, when Mrs. Ramsay said: "I heard a little piece of scandal today, and I thought I would come to head-quarters to know whether it was true or not. You know, my dear, that people are so careless in repeating what they hear."

Mrs. Wentworth said not a word, and as Mrs. Ramsay could not provoke her to inquire what it was, she continued:

"Mrs. Higgins told me that Mrs. McGillan told her that Mrs. Spokesman told her that Mrs. Amy told her, that Mr. Wentworth had sold her husband that splendid span of horses of yours. I must confess we have all envied you, but I could not believe my own ears, for I knew they were a present to you on your birth-day. I thought perhaps you might give me the particulars, for I am dying to know. I should have delighted to have had them for my pets. The Doctor would certainly have bought them if he had known you wished to dispose of them. They trotted so magnificently!—how could you spare them? I never give away presents."

It was as much as Mrs. Wentworth could do to keep back the gushing tears which threatened to suffuse her cheeks, but she inwardly breathed a prayer to God for help, and strength for any emergency, and she so controlled her emotions that the most interested beholder could not have detected the convulsions that were agonizing her soul.

For the first few years after their marriage, Charles had been uniformly kind to his wife; but by degrees he used stimulants to such an extent that they increased his irritability, and he gradually forgot his promise to love and cherish her. She had sacrificed everything for him, even her father, for when Charles, in a moment of rage, had written an insolent letter to Mr. Beal, to which Mr. Beal had replied that he wished the correspondence to cease until he could feel differently, Nora had taken the part of her husband, and said she would uphold him in everything. But gradually the truth had broken on her mind that Charles could practice deception upon even her, when it would subserve his ends, and she now thought she saw another indication of the same state of mind. She had asked him that morning, before he left home, for $20, to make some spring purchases for herself and children, and from even this mere pittance she had promised to give five dollars to a benevolent society. He answered her very cuttingly and unkindly, in the same old stereotyped way—"You women are always wanting money for gewgaws and trinkets." Nora said not a word in reply; but what a wounded spirit, what a crushed heart was hers! She did not taunt her husband with the fact that she had unreservedly consigned to him the money which her father had given her at her marriage, the interest of which would have more than supported her in gentility. She did not reproach him with his former poverty and her father's generosity; but, as one is sometimes overpowered when exposed to the scorching rays of the sun, so she felt at his unkindness. There are some who cannot say back again the angry word, but it sinks into the heart and makes an indelible impression there, though not reflected again. They are like opaque glasses—do not reflect the rays of light; while others, like transparent glass, throw back every beam. She thought the intelligence which she just heard, of his selling, without even consulting her wishes, the horses which she had petted so that they knew her voice, was the very acme of all his unkindness. But she would not expose to these gossiping women her want of confidence in her husband, neither her ignorance of, or suspicions of, the sale, but she replied with much seeming nonchalance,

"You know Mrs. Ramsay, that my husband is so much occupied with his profession that he has very little time for riding, and I do not care to go out without him."

"By the way, Mrs. Wentworth, I have brought a subscription paper for you to append your name to, knowing your philanthropy, benevolence and wealth. It is a very worthy object.—Shall I put your name down for $20?"

"I would gladly give it, Mrs. Ramsay; but, really, my purse is not at this moment, like the widow's cruise of oil. I have just been paying my annual subscriptions, and really cannot aid you to-day, but if you will call in a week's time I may be able to give you some assistance; or, if you will call on Mr. Wentworth, he may aid you."

"See how fortunate I have been, Mrs. Wentworth. Here is Mrs. Amy down for $50; Mrs. McGillan for $50; Mrs. Screwdriver for $50; Mrs. Paxton, our minister's wife, for $20. But I know expenses do come thick and fast, and I will call again. But," said she significantly, "if you wish to dispose of anything else, let me know;—but good morning, dear, I will call again."

On walked this lady, without becoming much enlightened. She was provoked that she could not impart some scandal to her friends, who were anxiously awaiting her. They had made surmises that Mr. Wentworth's business was in some way in confusion, but could not exactly ascertain how or where. Mrs. Ramsay was of the scorpion genus. There are some persons who always leave a sting behind. They either impart unpleasant information, wound your sensitiveness and pride, or in some way cross your path. Such persons are feared, but never loved. They will sow the seeds of dissension between the most devoted friends, and then express sympathy at the alienation they have been instrumental in producing.

When Nora was left alone, hot, scalding tears coursed their way down her cheek. "O, if I could only do something by which I might earn money, then I should not be obliged to ask my husband for every cent I spend, and render back an account of everything he gives me. But I can not do a thing. If I should propose to take in sewing, I should not only lose caste myself, (for which I should, I confess, care very little,) but my husband would lose his standing in society. Besides, my time is so much interrupted by fashionable calls that I have no time for study or thought. I might, I suppose, teach music, but it would be the talk of our town; everybody would wonder, and think we were really poor, and then we should lose our friends, and Charles, perhaps, his practice. Yes; 'tis true that I should not miss them much, heartless as the best. But Charles is so fond of parties and oyster-suppers that he would not willingly resign them. I might, I suppose, make some retrenchment in our household expenses; but he will have his dinners in style, his servants, and his wines; and I have no more allowance from him than I really have to expend, if I suit his palate. How truly hath it been said, that blessings brighten as they take their flight! It was a happy day—though I did not then appreciate it—when, if I saw the poor and the needy, from my overflowing purse I could distribute alms or charity as I pleased. Some of my old friends would think there was a decided change in me—that my benevolence was moss-grown by the pleasures of this city life. While we have the reputation of being worth several hundred thousand dollars, I cannot so much as give a dollar away, without I have to tell Charles just where it has gone. I am obliged to be so close with my servants, and whenever I purchase necessary articles of apparel for my children, I have to get them as cheaply as possible. O, how can I get money—how can I get it without receiving it so grudgingly, or asking for it as if I were a menial and ought not to breathe! How my dear father would grieve if he should know how we live together! if he should know what I suffer and what petty annoyances I am obliged to endure! But Charles has forbidden me to write to him, or even to my sister Ella. Besides I could not betray Charles' unkindness to him. He offers me a home, but I should be wretched indeed away from Charles. No! I will suffer to the end before I complain of my lot!"

We cannot always judge rightly the motives by the actions. Mrs. Wenthworth, at heart, was as charitable as in her girlhood days, and not a whit more aristocratic in feeling; yet she had a position to sustain—an artificial life to live. If we could tear away the externals that gild life's phantoms, we should be terrified at the sight that would meet our gaze at every hand. We read of the Inquisition of Rome with horror that freezes our blood; but in many a family there is a secret system of torture which pierces every nerve of the system, and, often too, under the garb of sanctity or affability. There is many a man who passes as one of the best and kind-hearted men on "change," who, at home, is a petty tyrant, as great as the autocrats of Russia. We could read the annals of many a woman who was reared in her girlhood in the lap of luxury, every want being anticipated by tender-hearted and doating parents. She leaves her father's roof, marries; and, even though she may have brought her husband a fortune, yet she cannot touch a single cent of it; for, when she marries, she gives up her deed and title, and resigns her property into the hands of her husband, who may be loyal or not to the trust committed to him. And perhaps she may want some of the necessaries of life—shoes for her feet, or gloves for her hand—simply because she is unwilling to beg her husband for it. I know that many wives are extravagant; but is it not as often the case that the husband spends as much for wines, cigars, and useless excesses, as he allows her for her wants and real necessities?

As Nora sat musing over her lot, Charles entered his house with a flushed and excited countenance. He had just bargained away her favorite horses, but he had purchased some of the same color, and did not mean to apprise his wife of the fact. He had told Mr. Amy not to mention the fact, and he had told his partner, but cautioned him not to speak of it. Of course they informed their wives, who mentioned it as a great secret. Mrs. Amy told Mrs. Spokesman; Mrs. Spokesman told Mrs. Paxton and Mrs. Higgins; and Mrs. Higgins was determined to ferret out the whole matter, and so told her husband, who, poor soul, forebore to extend the news further.

Charles was now flush with change. He remembered that his wife had asked him for money before he left his home; so he stopped into the store of a merchant, and purchased a splendid brocade dress, which he had sent to his dwelling. It arrived about the same time with himself, and he bore it to her as a peace-offering to his conscience.

"O, Charles! you shouldn't have purchased me this splendid dress; I could have done without it. My wardrobe is so amply supplied with dresses."

"But, my love, you know we are invited to a party at Dr. Ramsay's, one week from this evening, and blue is so becoming to your fairly-white complexion that I could not withstand the temptation to purchase this for you. I also have a present of a new bracelet, pin and earrings to match. Come, my love, let me see you with the sweet, happy expression you were wont to have in days gone by. See, my little Charle, here is a new game for you, and for my little Nora is a necklace, with a diamond of the first water in it. Come, Nora, give me some of your plaintive lays to soothe me, for I am exceedingly weary. I have next week a very important case on hand, and if I gain the suit, Mr. Amy says it will be a crown, a glittering coronet, which will put me beyond competition. I have such a train of argument and testimony that I have not the slightest doubt but that I shall win the suit."

Nora tremblingly approached the piano, but her soul was not there. She could truth mentally exclaim to her Father in Heaven, "Whom have I in heaven but thee, and there is none on earth beside thee." She thought how much more usefully she could have expended the money which he had laid out for them. Her children needed clothing, and she needed more useful garments. Besides, she thought of that benevolent operation that she would very gladly have seconded, and would have preferred to have given the whole price of the dress, and worn one of her old ones to the proposed party. But she strove to please her husband, and tried all she could to win him to herself again. She sang his favorite songs, and for awhile he lost himself in the revery of delight which he always experienced when his wife played and sang for him.

The next morning, before he left, he handed her $20, and kissed her as he left. He walked off more light-hearted than usual, thinking he had been unusually kind to that gentle being.—When he had gone, Nora took pencil and paper, and put down the most prominent articles that she needed, and their probable prices. But so many necessities crowded upon her mind that she did not know where to commence, and certainly not where to end. First of all, her new dress was to be made and trimmings were to be bought for it. The making would be something; and then, as every new supply brings with it a host of new wants, she she would need new shoes, new gloves, and a new neck attire. Altogether she would, with the greatest economy, need to expend ten dollars to make her dress wearable. Then her children needed new shoes and clothes; a hat for Charlie, as his father had said he was ashamed to have him wear the one he had; a new bonnet for her little girl; a new hat for herself; so that she could have used twice or three times the other $10, almost before she could be aware how it had gone—and then what would be left for the subscription? Echo alone answered. Pitiable are those who are compelled to keep up appearances above their actual means! Men will have the name of doing a large amount of business, but at the same time have their capital so invested in that business, that they have to live more niggardly and meanly than their clerks who expend what they earn. They are obliged, they think, to maintain outside show and style, and harrass their very brains to know how to accomplish this. Happiness is more equally distributed than many suppose. Let no one envy the rich; they have cares and responsibilities corresponding to the enjoyments they receive.—The rich man is haunted by beggars, who curse him and his family if he will not squander his property upon them. If he give benevolently, avaricious persons, who assume the right of censorship to sit as judge over his actions, blame him for not giving more, and are clamorous after his possessions. Do not envy the rich! ye who are not blessed with this world's goods. It hath been said that a camel can pass through the eye of a needle more easily than the rich man can enter heaven; so that he has enough to do to work out his own salvation, without any of the carpings or bitterness.

The evening for the party came, and in one of the most brilliant equipages that were driven to No. —, in Fifth Avenue, rode Charles Wentworth and his beautiful wife. There are some who fade early; but Nora in her womanhood acquired new beauties, or rather she unfolded, and the more trials she had, the more character she developed, and the more expression was displayed in her countenance. She walked majestically over those velvet carpets. Her accustomed paleness was tinged with a crimson flush, which the heat of the rooms and excitement had produced. The bluedress became her wonderfully. Charles thought that she never looked more beautifully, and she was the admired of all, the star of the evening, eclipsing even some of the young belles, who had ventured out to this magnificent entertainment.

During the evening, Mrs. Ramsay, whose mind never soared to supernal hights, unless, like the foolish bat, she borrowed the wings and plumage of the eagle,—but even then her descent was as rapid as her ascent,—said to Mrs. Wentworth: "What a love of a dress you have, Mrs. Wentworth. Where did you purchase it?"

"It was a present from my husband."

"What a good husband he must be." She thought of the horses, and so did Mrs. Wentworth, but neither made any personal allusion to the subject.

"But I don't have to trouble my husband for such trash. I'll tell you how I manage. You know my husband is a very quiet, inoffensive man, and I don't like to trouble him for every little riband I want. So, when what he gives me monthly is not enough, I just wait till he has gone to bed, and then I shut my eyes and take out his pocket-book from his pocket, and then make my observations where there is a loose bill. I then shut my eyes again and abstract it; of course, then I haven't seen it go away. Do ye understand? You know they say that husband and wife are one, and so it doesn't make much difference which of the hemispheres have the money, does it? And if it don't, why it is sometimes agreeable for the lesser fraction, as weak vessels of but little account, to have a few odds and ends. I know that Blackstone—and I suppose he had a stony heart or conscience—says that that one is the husband, in the eyes of the law; but I am no lawyer—I don't pretend to much learning, and am not going to spend my time to quarrel with him about it. So I only act out my instincts—ain't that right?"

Mrs. Wentworth could but laugh at this political intrigue. But she replied—"Don't your husband detect the fraud?"

"O, I'm careful. When he has only a few notes, I take a small one. One day I was terribly in need of money, and so I took a $10 bill. The next day he said, with some surprise,—'I wonder what I did with that $10 note Mr. B. gave me yesterday? I must either have dropped it, or expended it without being aware of it.' So I let the poor soul really think that he had spent it. When we were first married, I used to have a regular time with him whenever I wanted money. But at length, tears and entreaties did not move him to pity, so I deliberately came to the conclusion, after I had lived so for three or four years, to endure it no longer."

Nora thought that every soul knoweth its own bitterness, and she determined to endure her's more patiently.

"And so you have committed petit larceny ever since? Did your conscience never upbraid you for doing so? I am sure I never could be happy to adopt that course, if I never had money."

"O, the conscience is as elastic as rubber; just stretch it a few times, and it yields beautifully, and don't trouble much after the first. Beside, I take care of my husband's house, preside at his table, at his parties, take care of his children and the labor in doors, while he works out doors and visits patients. Now I think it is no more than justice that we share profits; but his skull is so thick that I never could make him comprehend this is a truth. But this is a piece of scandal, and I don't tell it to any one. I suppose you have no occasion for such things, with a rich father to give you what you want."

There is some reason in Mrs. Ramsay's arguments. Though we would not justify such a course of pilfering or plunder which is actually pursued by many wives in preference to teasing a husband for money; yet we do think that husbands should allow the wife a certain sum, either weekly or monthly, according to their means, that they may know on what they can depend. Then the husband would not be obliged to make expensive presents to his wife of wearing apparel, which oftentimes are not needed, and she would not require more money than would thus be used. There should be a remedy for this existing evil in society.

Little did Mrs. Ramsay know that she was probing a tender wound, or the real state of her friend's finances.

When Nora was married, her father furnished her house elegantly and gave her $60,000.—Then he told her husband that as he had a profession and was well calculated to earn a competency, he need expect no more from him during his life-time. Mr. Beal was one of that class who prefer to give voluntarily, than to be dunned and to be obliged to give "solens volens." Within the last three years Charles, at three different times, had sent an urgent request, that he would aid him in paying debts which he had contracted, stating that it was so expensive to live in New York, that he found it very difficult to maintain the style that was necessary to save his custom and friends. To these solicitations the old man sent $20,000, and also a secret messenger to discover the peculiar nature of the debts of Charles. When he received the startling information that Charles frequented gambling houses—that he drank the most expensive wines, and was living every day like a Prince, he became irritated, and wrote an angry letter, as we have hinted, giving him distinctly to understand, that he could not and would not tolerate such things; that he would never give him another penny while he lived unless he reformed, and if he could not support his daughter as she had been accustomed to live, to bring her home to him. This produced an estrangement between the families, and gradually the correspondence was broken off. Nora and Ella had been faithful correspondents in the early years of their marriage, but gradually cares and troubles crowded on their minds and demanded their attention, so they gradually ceased their communications, and now Charles forbade it altogether.

For the first three or four years of their wedded life, Nora visited her childhood's home every year; but changes gradually occurred there; her old school mates, one by one, were married, died, or moved away to other scenes, and strangers, who knew her not, occupied their places. So she lost insensibly her interest in going back. The children matured into young ladies, and the place of her birth was not the old familiar spot that it was when she left it. Though the scenes of her childhood were always dear to her heart, yet she could not fail to notice all the changes which occurred in the little circle of her particular friends.

At first Charles was uniformly kind to her, for he really loved her, but he became from year to year more irritable, which made Nora unhappy, for she had always been accustomed to an atmosphere of love. But she forbore to expose her grief, even to her dear sister Ella, to whom she had always confided all her joys and even her most secret thoughts. A trusting wife, dependent on the smiles of her husband for happiness, will bear and forbear to the end before she will expose his short-comings and failings to her nearest friend. Nora could not answer his unkind, but pined in secret. Her pillow was often wet with tears. She was morbidly sensitive, but she clung to her husband with hope and faith as the only anchor to her soul.

He had been formerly very liberal to her; but his private expenses were more and more urgent, and required his utmost economy to keep him in needful funds to supply them. He never thought that he could curtail those expenses; but, on the other hand, he only increased them. His business was very thriving, beyond his most sanguine expectations. He almost always gained his cause, and had he been surrounded by a different class of friends and advisers, he might have amassed a princely fortune. But, alas for him! the more money he made, the greater were his expenditures, and he did not realize the difference between the expenses of himself and his wife. He liked to see her attired in costly apparel, and he often made her presents of the most expensive articles; but she as often suffered for the want of shoes, gloves, and the little needful wants of life that she could not enumerate. She had curtailed her benevolent operations, and gave but a tithe of what she had been in the habit of bestowing previous to her marriage. Her father had been liberal to them, given them a good "outfit," and had made them magnificent presents; but he had pride and dignity of character, and Charles had irritated and wounded the old gentleman's feelings by his prodigal habits.

We have said that Mr. Beal was philanthropic. He was indeed so. But he often said that he would never aid a man whom he knew indulged in dissipated habits. He had been particularly pleased with Charles, in this respect, during his student's life, and did everything to encourage him. He had liberally supported him while he was gaining his profession, and he was proud of him as a son at the encomiums and flattering adulations that were everywhere heaped upon him in unmeasured terms; so that he was pained to hear of his excesses. Charles, however, excused himself by saying, that it was necessary for him in following his profession to indulge his habits—that he must treat his friends as they treated him, or they would call him mean, and as they used wine freely, he was obliged to do the same. Then the most cutting of all was, that he wrote to his father-in-law that he valued his example, and as he had seen wine used in his dwelling, that surely he was not the one to preach to him with reference to it.

Here was a dilemma for Mr. Beal. He was not the one to raise that as a barrier to his favor, but he was stung by his sarcastic words and cutting remarks, and he was not the man to retract when he had once spoken.

Tea-Table Contribution.

The Maine Liquor Law being the subject of conversation at one of our Boarding houses this evening, the Ladies proposed to distribute as many copies of the State Temperance League as the gentlemen would furnish money to purchase. The proposition was accepted—of course it was—and the avails of the collection—four dollars—sufficient to pay for one hundred copies, has been sent to the Treasurer.

Two hundred dollars are needed immediately for this object. Let the friends of Temperance at every tea-table take up a collection for the circulation of the Maine Law Tracts.

We second the motion.

REV. MR. WILSON'S SERMON AT BELOIT.—A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, who was present at the Commencement exercises of Beloit College, notices Rev. Mr. Wilson's sermon on that occasion as follows:

"The Sermon by Mr. Wilson, of Milwaukee, before the Education Society, was an excellent performance. Two points made by him are so extraordinary for the school with which he sympathises (N. S. Presbyterian) that I deem them worthy of some notice, as one of the "signs of the times." First, that the preacher is to expound the nature and harmony of four distinct Divine Revelations—the Revelation of Nature, which is the outgoing of God; of Providence, which is the Energy of the Divine Mind in Passing Events; of Reason, which is the mind's intention of God and his will; of Christianity, which is God's open Revelation, harmonizing with, and enlightening the other three. Second, that no man is called of God to expound to men these Revelations, who is not gifted with the power of eloquence.

The first point makes sorry work with that theology which disparages Reason, because utterly repugnant to it: the second, with the call and ordination-roll of a vast multitude of ministers, whose happiest faculty is in preaching people to sleep, and waking them only by giving out a closing hymn!"

A Novel Match.—A cricket match was played a short time since, in England, between eleven married women and the same number of unmarried. A large concourse of spectators assembled to witness the novel scene. The match was won, strange to say—by the matrons.

Of course; they had won one match, and it is not strange they could win another.

CALEDONIA, Sept. 14, 1853.

MR. CLEMENT:—I wish to trouble you to inqure if you can tell how Mr. Doolittle, the democratic candidate for Judge of this District, stands upon the question of a prohibitory liquor law for this State. I am a democrat, and a temperance man, and I wish to know when I vote for a Judge, whether he believes in the constitutionality of that law or not. I have been informed that he has argued in private against the law—against the policy of passing it—and against the constitutionality of the law itself. If he indulges those sentiments now, he cannot have my vote. Can you give me, and a thousand others who feel as I do, any information on that point? It is full enough to have his law partner who is in the Senate, opposed to the law without placing a man on the bench of a Judge who shall feel bound to oppose it also. Yours respectfully,

AN OLD LINE DEMOCRAT.

REPLY BY THE EDITOR.

We don't know that we can give our correspondent such a reply as his question deserves. We have never had any conversation with Mr. D. on that topic. We have been told that he was earnestly requested to say something on the temperance question on the Fourth of July. We know that for some reason or other he did not. We have never known him to identify himself with a temperance meeting or movement since we have been in the city. We know that he is the candidate of a great party which sustains the rum party of the State and which is in turn supported by it. We don't believe that he or any of the candidates of the democratic party for State officers will open their heads upon this question; while it is tacitly understood by those who oppose the Maine Law that "they are all right." If he is in favor of the Law, his temperance friends have a right to know it. If he is opposed to the Law, those who are opposed to it have a right to know it. We hope he will come out over his own signature and define his position on that question, and the fugitive slave law also, since his party have endorsed at Madison the Administration of Frank Pierce, and the compromise meas-ures, which underlie it.—Racine Advocate.

Resisting an Officer---Gross Outrage upon the City Marshal.

Marshal Barse was yesterday directed to arrest Mr. John Cunningham, residing upon Wayne st., in this City, for keeping a disorderly house. In attempting to make the arrest, he was resisted and badly beaten. The Marshal served the process upon Cunningham, who was leaving the house with the officer, when a man named Welch, ordered Cunningham not to go, and resisted the Marshal. The Marshal informed them that Cunningham must go with him; Welch swore he should not, and both commenced an assault upon Mr. Barse. The noise attracted the attention of Welch's wife, and a Mrs. Quin, who occupied a part of the house, both of whom added their efforts to take Cunningham from the custody of the Marshal, beating him with stones, with their fists and with the cane which they had wrested from him, and finally drove him out of the house. They all followed the Marshal into the street, and continued their assaults upon him. Capt. E. B. Ward, who was passing near the scene of combat, was hailed by the Marshal, and promptly stepped forward, and used his cane with good effect, right and left, for a few moments, when the two men and Mrs. Quin were secured and lodged in jail.—Detroit Tribune, 14th inst.

CURE FOR THE BLOODY MURRAIN.—Mr. L. Frayer, of the town of Mt. Pleasant, in this county, has communicated to us the way he cured several of his own and his neighber's cattle of the bloody murrain; and he thinks the information will be of so much service to farmers and stock raisers, that he wishes us to publish the cure for their benefit. It is simply this: to pour down the animal's throat from one to three quarts of new milk, as soon as they manifest the disease. The disease can be known by their lying down and kicking, and rolling their head as if in great pain; soon blood passes from them. He says in every instance in which he has tried it, it has effected a speedy and perfect cure.—Racine Advocate.

THE IMPROVEMENT TO GO ON.—Hon. M. C. Darling, President of the Fox and Wisconsin River Improvement, has just returned from the East, where he and Hon. M. L. Martin, and Mr. Lawton have been spending several weeks in making arrangements for funds with which to prosecute this Improvement. We understand from him, that they have been eminently successful in their efforts, and that they are now prepared to commence operations immediately. Their advertisement for 1000 laborers will be found in another column.—Fond du Lac Herald.

The cranberry crop this season has proved unusually abundant. The Indians have been in town almost every day for a week past, offering them for seventy-five cents per bushel. The marshes which yield this delicious fruit abound in this vicinity, and many of our citizens supply themselves without much labor or inconvenience. The usual method of gathering them is with a small rake, constructed for the purpose, by means of which many barrels may be gathered in a day.—St. Anthony Express.

NEW DREDGE.—The dredge recently built at Milwaukee for the Government, arrived at this port on Wednesday. She will be ready for delivery in about two weeks. It is intended to apply her to the removal of the sand bar at the mouth of the harbor, and do other necessary work about the piers.—Chicago Tribune, 16th.

The St. Paul (Minnesota) Democrat states that a remnant of the once numerous Indian tribe of the Pillagers, in that vicinity, have determined upon celebrating one of their ancient rites, by offering a sacrifice to the evil spirit, and it is said that several of the braves have offered to immolate themselves. It is to take place on the 2d of October.

A YANKEE NOTION.—A card press has been invented by George P. Gordon, of New York which prints ten thousand copies an hour! The cards are printed from a long strip of card paper, which runs through the machine, and at every impression a single card is cut from the strip—the machine of course feeding itself. What would Caxton, Ramage, or Franklin, say to this advance in time upon the presses of the earlier days of printing.—Post.

The Fever at Mobile.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP.—Cincinnatti, Sept. 9.—A hackman named Green, and a city watchman named Bloom were held to bale to-day in $1,000 each, for arresting and attempting to kidnap Watkins a free mulatto. They were conveying him in a carriage last night and had nearly reached the river when their progress was arrested by a mob.

The New Bedford Standard says that a shock of an earthquake was very sensibly felt in this city at ten minutes past 11 o'clock, Wednesday night. The glass ware and other articles upon the shelves in several houses were considerably shaken, and in one or two places the doors were opened by the effect of the shock. The noise resembled the rolling of barrels, and at times the distant report of cannon. The shock was also very distinctly felt in Dartmouth.

OUR PROGENITORS.—Mr. Horatio G. Somerby of this city, has lately returned from a three years' residence in England, where he has been diligently pursuing his investigations relating to the family history of the early settlers of New England. He has brought over with him abstracts of upwards of two thousand ancient wills, and copious extracts from parish registers. He has, during his researches, discovered many valuable manuscripts relating to the early history of the North American colonies, which will be transcribed and deposited in the archives at Washington.—Boston Com.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills, for the cure of scrofula, Cancerous Wounds and old Sores.—Asa Avory, youth, the son of Mr. James Avory, of Ramsey, Cambridgeshire, was severely afflicted with scrofulous wounds for three or four years, and during that period many remedies were tried, but without the least benefit whatever being derived from them. In this deplorable state Mr. Joe. Sergeant, chemist, of Ramsey, recommended him to use Holloway's Ointment and Pills, and these invaluable medicines have been the means of effectually curing the boy of his shocking complaint in a very brief space of time. They are an efficacious remedy for bad legs, old sores, gout, and rheumatism. sep14d1w

Professor Alex. C. Barry's Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound, for beautifying, improving and preserving the hair, curing cuts, bruises, burns, stings, rheumatism, and all irritations of the skin. A preparation, the sale of which amounts to one million of bottles annually, would seem to need no advertisement; but as the thousands who purchase, use, and approve of it, have probably no idea of the enormous extent of the business done by Professor Barry, he gives herewith a plain statement of facts derived from his books, and with them tenders his earnest and hearty thanks to his innumerable patrons.

Professor Barry's accounts of sales for the year 1852, show that during that year about 940,000 bottles of his Tricopherous were disposed of, and that the cash product of this immense sale was nearly $100,000.

This plain, unvarnished tale is a better commentary on the value of the article than anything its inventor could say. If it were not peerless in its effect upon the hair—if it were not invaluable as a household remedy, for cuts, bruises, burns, skin diseases &c.—it would not, of course, be so universally in demand. The wealthy portion of the public would buy it any price, but Professor Barry has reduced it to a figure so low that the poorest can avail themselves of its benefits.

Sold in large bottles (price 25 cents,) at wholesale and retail, at the manufactory and depot, 137 Broadway, and by the principal merchants and druggists throughout the United States and Canada, Mexico, West Indies, Great Britain, France, &c.

WELL, the BARNUM HUMBUG has been exhibited, and we are all satisfied with it, and we will have to be satisfied with whatever is presented before us; for what else is there in this cold, miserable world, but Humbugs? Lawyers are Humbugs, Doctors are Humbugs, Bankers are Humbugs, Merchants are Humbugs, Auctioneers would try to be Humbugs, and in fact every thing is a Humbug, with two exceptions, viz: Handsome Ladies and a group of small Children, are the only realities we have in this world. Now, I have no fault to find, nor do I care what any one says, for there is no friend so near and dear to you as yourself, and all you should wish of that friend is to do right. Julien's Concert---Temperance---Woman.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13, 1853.

We attended Julien's Concert, last night, at Castle Garden. About 3,000 present.—There are about 100 performers, all led by a master spirit, and keeping the most perfect time. It is one of the few performances worth hearing. A citizen of Wisconsin came here, expecting to stay but one day, but remained five days, on purpose to hear Julien, and went to his concerts every night. He said if business did not call him home, he would stay a month to attend his concerts. The music is grand—now soft and plaintive as the mother's low song, and anon swelling like the waves of the ocean, when stirred by the tempest. It is really sublime.

There is a great deal of feeling, here and elsewhere, in regard to the exclusion of delegates to the Half-World's Temperance Convention, because they were women. The "Call" embraced all the delegates of Total Abstinence Societies, and many societies appointed delegates of both sexes. The Convention violated the call, overrode the decision of the Chairman, and resorted to a contemptible trick of chicanery and fraud, to get rid of the delegates in favor of admitting women, by turning them all out of the Hall, and then admitting the old fogies first, and then voting on the question before the others were admitted. We never saw so gross an outrage perpetrated by a body possessing morality. And what makes the outrage more intolerable, its promptors and executors are the religious leaders of our country.

The Massachusetts State Temperance Convention, I perceive, has followed in the wake of the old fogies who figured in this city. Give 'em rope, and they will soon reach the end of their tether.

I have spent two days and one evening in the Crystal Palace. Considerable additions have been made since you were here, especially to the gallery of paintings; but no catalogue of them has yet been furnished.

☞ Our report of the Hunker Ratification Meeting is truthful, and well worth reading. We give the proceedings entire, while the Hunker presses will omit the most interesting portions—leaving the picture of the scene very incomplete. We are not in the habit of doing things by the halves.

The Other Ticket.

The "softs" at the Syracuse, N. Y., Convention nominated the following ticket, which we notice the Buffalo Republic flings to the breeze. That paper calls those who took part in nominating the other ticket, bolters.

The candidates for Judges of Court of Appeals are the same on both tickets:

Secretary of State—Isaac C. Verplanck, of Erie county.
Controller—Robert Kelley, of New York.
State Treasurer—Francis A. Segur, of Lewis county.
Canal Commissioner—Andrew J. Yates, of Montgomery county.
State Prison Inspector—William C. Dryer, of Ontario county.
State Engineer—William H. Bristol, of Orange county.
Judge of Court of Appeals—Charles H. Ruggles, of Duchess, for long term.
Hiram Denio, of Oneida, for short term.
Clerk of Court of Appeals—Albert Egerton, of Delaware.

The Mum Candidate.—The Committee of the Ladies' Temperance Society of Racine addressed a note to Mr. Doolittle, candidate for Circuit Judge of the 1st District, inquiring his position on the Maine Law, but Mr. D. would not deign to give them a reply.

The Democracy in Council.

The demonstration in Military Hall, Saturday evening, gave the spectators, who were about equal in numbers with the party, an inkling as to the harmony of the democracy. We propose to give, briefly, some glimpses of the doings and sayings which the "party organs" will leave out of their reports—always the most interesting part.

We were there before the meeting organized, and observed Messrs. Larkin, Watkins, Mallory, Chandler, Walker, Blossom, Shaw, Kruer, and others of the party spokesmen and wire-workers, walking about and canvassing with each other. We did not see Judge Hubbell there.

A little after 7 o'clock, Mr. Mallory called the meeting to order, there being some 40 to 50 persons present, spectators included; and despite the suggestion of W. K. Wilson, that the meeting wait till more were present, an organization was effected. Geo. H. Walker, on taking the Chair, "at the solicitation of his fellow citizens," he said, remarked that he would endeavor to discharge the duties with impartiality; that should there be more than one faction, or party, in the meeting, he should deal fairly by all. He knew no faction; he came there to ratify, &c. The remaining officers of the meeting, and a committee on resolutions, of which Mr. Watkins was chairman, were then appointed.

Mr. Ryan, who had just come in, was then called for by the meeting. He came forward near the Chair, and desired an explanation of the haste in organizing the meeting; said he had come a quarter of an hour before the usual time, and was surprised to find the meeting already organized; thought it looked suspicious. Mr. Walker explained, but the explanation was not satisfactory, and Mr. Ryan continued to entertain suspicions of something under the "meal heap." He had a high respect for the late State Convention and its action; thought the present meeting, as organized, was not friendly to the late Convention or to its nominees, &c. Mr. R. was asked if he would support the ticket; he replied, with a manner and tone that to us conveyed some doubt, that he thought he should. During the colloquy between Ryan and Walker, Mr. Lucas Seaver, very much excited, broke in and said he had "a word to say" to Mr. R. The Chair very properly told Mr. Seaver that "the floor was occupied." Mr. Ryan continued; he intimated that the control of the meeting was pre-concerted—was determined on beforehand, and that the organization was effected before the usual time to secure the control. He had known conventions so organized and controlled; it was not uncommon. However, he would not occupy the attention of the meeting, but would retire and attend to his private business.

There was much feeling manifested by the Hubbell-ites, who had control of the meeting. Ryan's presence and remarks weighed down their spirits, as if he were the veritable "night-horse" that troubled their digestion. But immediately after he retired, Messrs. Mallory, Blossom, and others, broke out with protestations that all was fair in the organization, &c. Mr. Blossom, in particular, knew that all was right; said there was no hour mentioned in the call; that the meeting was not organized till 7¼ o'clock, for he had set his watch at 4 o'clock that afternoon by Kirby's time. He hoped Mr. Ryan would be unanimously permitted to retire to his private business, &c.

Mr. Seaver now got a hearing, and said "his word" about the organization. He denied that it was all "cut and dried" beforehand, and pronounced Mr. Ryan's statements 'gratuitous,' &c. At which, Mr. Ryan, who had not yet left the room, sprang forward with a bound, and pointing his finger at Seaver, retorted, with startling emphasis, "Luke Seaver, You told me the same last night!" Mr. Seaver squirmed, and would have replied, but the managers choked him off by hastily bringing forward Mr. McGarry, a delegate to the State Convention, that he might relate the private history of its proceedings. By which manœuvre a pretty quarrel was spoiled, for Ryan's blood was up, and Luke evidently was spunky.

Mr. McGarry, after some preliminary remarks, spoke of the "rejected resolutions,"—said they were rejected by a bare majority of the Convention; that the friends of the resolutions were outgeneralled. He said that, inasmuch as the friends of the nominees in the Convention were too smart for their opponents, he hoped they would prove smart enough at the polls to elect the ticket. The nominations were not his choice, but he thought now that he should vote for the ticket; thought he could do so without a violation of his conscience, but if he found hereafter that his conscience forbade it, he shouldn't do so. By the way, Mr. McGarry was the only speaker who seemed to have any conscience in the matter.

We were pleased with Mr. McGarry's remarks in favor of granting the public lands to landless actual settlers, and in opposition to grants to corporations. He was heartily applauded, and spoke eloquently. This part of land reform is daily growing popular with the masses. As Mr. McGarry well remarked, "it is a democratic measure," and should have its place in their published party creed. We think so too. But, inasmuch as the Convention and the Party are tied to the Baltimore Platform, which has never a word in favor of this "democratic measure;" and inasmuch as the party have time and again sworn fealty to its rotten planks, the Convention could do no less, as good national democrats, than scout the proposition to donate land in limited quantities to actual settlers, and it did.

Mr. McGarry and all the party well know that the Democracy, largely in the ascendant in the U. S. Senate, rejected the House Bill donating the public lands to actual settlers. The measure is eminently democratic, but the Democratic party as such is opposed to it, and is controlled by men who have, and will again, give these lands away to corporations. There is but one party which is true to this, and to all other democratic principles; and that party makes no professions but what it will carry out when it becomes possessed of the Government. It is the Free Democratic party, which sooner or later is bound to control and shape the destinies of this glorious and increasing galaxy of States. So, old fogies, prepare to stand aside.

Here the meeting was informed that Major Hanscomb, of Michigan, was present, and would address them. As the Committee on Resolutions were waiting to report, Mr. Hanscomb waived the floor, and Mr. Watkins came forward and read the resolutions, among which were the two that were rejected by the State Convention, and another claiming, in substance, that the Temperance question was a [illegible] question, and that men [illegible] right to wear, eat and drink whatever they pleased. Mr. Watkins said he wanted to speak to the matter of the resolutions, but would say a few words now, and give way to Mr. Hanscomb, but afterwards should be very happy to accommodate them with his views; and then he launched forth in quite a little speech, ever and anon intimating to his impatient auditory that he should soon give way to Maj. Hanscomb. He did, at last, and was not called on afterward for his views.

Maj. Hanscomb, a thick, stout, determined-looking man—just what a Major should be—came forward. He adverted to the interest which our sister State of Michigan felt in the harmony and success of the democracy of Wisconsin; how they rejoiced in its large majority which helped to swell the great national triumph of General Pierce, whom he eulogised as a pattern man and President, who had surrounded himself with a Cabinet composed of the very best talent of the nation. He thought the President and his Cabinet had initiated and carried on the government with wonderful success; that is, we suppose, had distributed the spoils so as to cause as little troublesome disappointments as possible. He counselled the democracy here to unite and forget faction; that faction had proved disastrous in other States; and encouraged them with the declaration, that though they had their factions and bickerings, they were no worse off than the democracy of Michigan, Ohio, New York and other States, in all which the party was split and divided. He didn't know anything about the divisions here, and he didn't care anything about them. He hoped they would unite and triumph. He didn't know the nominees, but so far as he knew, they were worthy of support; they were the regular nominees, and that was sufficient for him. He applauded the conduct of Capt. Ingraham,—said it had long been the policy of England to protect her citizens, in whatever part of the world they might be, no matter how low their positions, and he hoped our government had now taken the same position.

We hope so too. And while we rejoice that our nation is to become a power among the nations of the earth, to be felt in favor of struggling freedom the world over, it would give a greater zest to our rejoicing, if we could add, that at home, too, the power of the nation is to be placed on the side of freedom, and the bloody fugitive slave law repealed,—a law which turns the whole Union into a slave-hunting domain, and the whole population into slave-hunters.—Wouldn't that be a glorious day for our Union? But then the President, his Cabinet, the Democratic and Whig parties, and Maj. Hanscomb also, are bound hand and foot to the juggernaut car of slavery, willing slaves to do its bloody work and crush the bodies and souls of men, women and children, and populate hell with victims. But to return to the Major.

After a few more remarks, in which he complimented the British flag, he stepped down from the stand. At which, a sturdy son of the Green Isle stepped forward and told the Major he had "said enough about the British flag," and referred to English treatment of Ireland. The Major was taken all aback, but as he was down, he concluded to stay there, and so no more was said about the British flag.

Mr. Gallagher, of Waukesha, now occupied the stand. He evidently had come prepared to give his friend Barstow a "big boost," but signally failed. At the outset of his speech, in dilating upon the capacity, the intellect and the democracy of Barstow, there were several points which the managers of the meeting thought should be applauded, but the signals they gave met with faint responses. Either the party didn't get the idea from the speaker, or they didn't care a fig for Barstow. Probably a little of both. Mr. G. was indifferent as to the capacity, honesty and intellect of the nominee, (meaning Barstow)—it was enough for him to know that he was regularly nominated. He said he came from the home of Barstow, Waukesha, which had the honor of presenting him for their suffrages. (Managers here clapped their hands; the people silent.) Waukesha county had been infected with free soilism, abolitionism, but there was none there now. It had been purged. It was now democratic to the core, and would give the ticket 1000 majority. He asked if Milwaukee wouldn't give 2,500? (Faint assent from the crowd.) He made quite a speech, and almost cleared the room before he was done.—While Mr. Gallagher was speaking and endorsing pro-slavery democracy and denouncing free soilism, we thought of 1848 and Mr. G.'s sentiments then, and to what base uses a man can descend.

Mr. Blossom now came forward, inflated his lungs, and, by dint of noise and gesticulation, brought back a portion of the audience which Mr. G. had scattered. The burden of Mr. B.'s song was, "Go the whole hog—he should go it, and always had." No one contradicted him, and he finally introduced his young friend, Mr. Bishop, from Conn., "a democrat dyed in the wool," who would enlighten them as to his democracy.

Mr. Bishop came forward, and concluded he would do as Mr. Blossom did, take off his coat, though his shirt might not be quite as clean, (at which the party cheered.) Mr. Bishop proceeded to give his political history, and the reason of his exodus along with other Connecticut whigs from that party. In doing so, he highly eulogised HENRY CLAY—dwelling on the treatment the great statesman had received from the Whig party in being set aside as a candidate to give place to military chieftains. His affection for the deceased statesmen, Clay and Webster, did not meet with much sympathy from the crowd, but his anecdotes—about the Irish girl who lost her character (certificate) on the boat on her way from Albany to New York, and the Hoosier's first sight of a locomotive, and the patient farmer—were heartily laughed at. Mr. Bishop said Providence saw fit to remove Gen. Taylor from the Presidency; that if he had lived, the Compromise measures could never have been passed, and the country would have been plunged in civil war!

We ask Mr. Bishop, if he is green enough to think there would have been a civil war, had Gen. Taylor lived to secure freedom as the law of the territories of the Union? And also, if he, and those who left the Whig party with him, would have waged a civil war on that account? The South wouldn't have done it—couldn't do it, without assistance from such as Mr. B. And would he assist them? If so, he is a fit subject for Austrian favor and Russian patronage!

Mr. B. made a passable Whig speech, about Whigs, which the crowd didn't seem to appreciate very highly, and his allusions to Harrison, Taylor, and Scott, were felt to be ill-timed and in bad taste. He had better confine himself, in Democratic meetings, to telling anecdotes. He has a pleasant way of doing that. Mr. Bishop is a good speaker, but his democracy evidently is of very recent date, and skin deep at that. He didn't come up to friend Blossom's recommend —"a democrat dyed in the wool"—his democracy lacked age. Mr. Bishop forsook the Whig party, because it neglected Webster and Clay and Fillmore, and nominated Harrison, Taylor, and Scott; because it preferred military chieftains to civilians, and then went right off and voted for General Pierce and Colonel King! He will do!

This was the last speech, and the meeting adjourned with three quite respectable cheers for the ticket, considering the small number left in the hall.

The meeting was a slim, tame affair, not more than three or four hundred being present at any time, and most of the time not half that number. All the speakers based the claims of their nominees for democratic support, on the fact that they were "regularly nominated," which seemed to them to be of more consequence, than their honesty, capacity, or fitness for the offices!

FRENCH MISSION.—Gen. Dix will probably yet get the French Mission. His recent letter to Dr. Garvin, of Georgia, declaring his adherence to the Compromise Measures and the Baltimore Platform, renders him quite acceptable to the South, and removes all objections to his appointment on the part of the President. The recent triumph of the Softs in New York will be an additional inducement for the President to give him the post.

THE WRECK OF THE STEAMER ERIE.—John Green, the celebrated diver, and his partner, Mr. Quigley, commenced operations on Monday, of last week, for raising the wreck of the Erie. Mr. Green descended in his diving-bell apparatus, and remained under water four hours. Chains were fastened around her bow and stern, and attached to her cylinder. She lays on a hard bottom. Mr. Green brought up with him several lumps of silver that had been melted, which he found near the engine.

☞ The Elkhorn Reporter (formerly Star) has been in existence just seven years—during which time its political complexion has been, first Whig, then Free Soil, and lastly it threw itself into the embrace of hunkerism, where it now rests. The Doctor ought to be able by this time to tell which party pays best.

Temperance Movement in Boston.—At a Temperance Convention in Boston, last week, it was decided to carry the Maine Law agitation into the primary political meetings, and also to raise one million of dollars to prosecute the rum-sellers.

☞ The Supreme Court meets at Madison to-day. A decision is expected to be given in regard to the writ of error relative to Connaughty and McDonald, sentenced to death for the murder of John Gullen.

☞ The Chinese revolution advances rapidly, and will probably not stop short of an entire expulsion of the Tartars. The rebels have taken two more cities, and the Imperial Treasury is empty, and there is no means of filling it.

☞ A public banquet was given on Tuesday evening last, at the Astor House, New York, by the contractors for the work on the Crystal Palace, in honor of Mr. Detmold, the Engineer, under whose supervision the architectural design of the Palace was selected, and the work prosecuted to completion.

Sunday School Union Visitor.—We have received a copy of a very neat and interesting semi-monthly journal bearing the above title, published at Hillsdale, Michigan, and devoted to the cause of education, morality and religion. Terms, 50 cents per annum, payable in advance.

AN ITEM OF NEWS.—The Racine Democrat says, "as a lawyer Mr. Doolittle stands second to no man in the State." The public are indebted to the editor of the Democrat for this important discovery, which no one else has ever made and probably never will.

EFFECTS OF RUM.—Two teamsters commenced a race with their teams at Chicago, on Friday last, when one of them fell off his wagon and the wheel passed over his head killing him instantly. Both men were intoxicated.

☞ The Mayor of the city of Toronto is charged with an unlawful use of the municipal funds, and his trial is now going on. The amount involved is £10,000. The case creates great excitement in Toronto.

NEW PAPER.—"The Olive Branch of the West," is the title of a religious paper just started at Chicago, and edited by Rev. J. R. Bulme of the Baptist denomination.

☞ The Democracy of the counties of Williams, Defiance and Paulding, Ohio, have refused to endorse the Baltimore Platform and President Pierce's Inaugural.

ST. CHARLES AIR LINE.—Hon. Alva Hunt, formerly Treasurer of New York, has been elected Treasurer of the Chicago and St. Charles Air Line Railroad.

☞ Three fires occurred at Chicago on Friday night by which $2,500 worth of property was destroyed.

TELEGRAPH.—A new telegraph line is about to be established between Chicago, Monroe and Toledo.

☞ The construction of the "Cut off" Railroad from Laporte to Joliett, is to be put under contract in a short time.

Annual Meeting of the State Temperance League.

☞ THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WISCONSIN STATE TEMPERANCE LEAGUE will be held at WATERTOWN, on Wednesday, the 19th day of October next, at 11 o'clock in the morning. It is hoped that every Auxiliary Society will be represented by its delegates.

MILWAUKEE COMMERCIAL RECORD.

Weekly Commercial Review.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY FREE DEMOCRAT,
Milwaukee, September 19, 1853.

There has been much activity manifested in the market department during the present week, and wheat has advanced a trifle again, since the arrival of the Franklin and Niagara bringing news of an encouraging nature from Europe, respecting the markets. The best quality and some that is not the best goes quick at $1,00 per bushel. Rye, Oats and Barley are in good demand, but are taken at rates below last week's quotations. It is settled that the crops in Europe will fall much short of the usual yield, and there will necessarily be a large demand for grain from this country to supply the deficiency. The war question is still unsettled. The N. Y. Courier & Enquirer thinks we have no such quantity of wheat as will supply the wants of Europe for the ensuing year. It supposes the deficiency in England will be 18,000,000 of quarters, while the entire production of this country is estimated at but 19,000,000 quarters, or 150,000,000 bushels. The deficiency in France is estimated at 1,500,000 quarters. In large sections of Italy not half a crop is expected. Spain also complains of a deficiency, and Sweden has so poor a harvest in prospect, that she is now importing largely from the Baltic.

The business on the M. & M. Railroad is very heavy.—From 8,000 to 10,000 bushels of Grain are brought in daily. The earnings for the past week were nearly $9,000. The Road will be opened to Stoughton, Dane co., some time next month.

The La Crosse Road is progressing steadily, and the last Beaver Dam Republican states that the people of Dodge County are wide awake in regard to its advancement, and that they have already subscribed nearly $400,000 of stock in the Road, and that amount is increasing at the rate of from $5,000 to $10,000 per day.

The Racine Advocate speaks in the following encouraging strain of the prospects of the Lake Shore Road:

"The Lake Shore Road is progressing with the most commendable dispatch. Hands are at work in various places between here and Kenosha, and between Kenosha and the State Line. There is no doubt but that this Road will be built as fast as men can be obtained to do the work, and a judicious expenditure of money can effect it."

A severe rain storm set in the latter part of Saturday night and continued with slight interruptions until Sunday evening, giving the earth a thorough drenching. So much rain has not fallen at one time in three months.

Sales of Real Estate at high prices continue to be effected. City trade is improving rapidly, and merchants are filling up their stores with their fall stocks as if they contemplated doing a heavy business.

Shipments of grain to the east have been considerable during the past week and the amount now in store is large.

☞ We are indebted to Chas. Gifford, Esq., for a lot of as fine and delicious peaches as one could ask for.

☞ The amount of damage done by the severe storm yesterday in this city was considerable. The cellars along East Water street were pretty well filled up with water, and in many stores goods were severely damaged by the rain beating in upon them thro' the buildings. So driving a storm has not been experienced in this city in a long time.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—During the thunder shower Sunday afternoon, between 4 and 5 o'clock, two houses were struck by lightning in the Fifth Ward. The lightning struck the chimney of the house of D. Merrill, passed down the roof, tearing it severely, and thence down the front side of the building, shattering the siding to fragments and hurling the splinters in all directions. The house of C. Holland, some distance south of Mr. Merrill's, was also struck but not damaged seriously. Fortunately, no person was injured.

East Water Street.—Some of the principal merchants and property-holders on East Water street are about circulating a petition to the Common Council, for the immediate planking or paving of that street. The street should be paved by all means, if possible; plank would last but a short time on a street of so much travel.

APPEALED.—The case of S. B. & J. Davis vs. Milwaukee & Mississippi Railroad Co., tried on Friday last, has been carried up by the Company. It will probably go to the highest Court in the State before it rests.

NEW PASSENGER CARS.—Two new passengers cars were put on the M. & M. R. R. on Saturday last. They have been needed for some time past.

Marine Disaster.—The brig Roscius, bound from Chicago for Buffalo, with a load of wheat, was struck by a squall about midnight Thursday, which carried away her foretopmast. On Friday evening she came into this port to repair her damages.

RETURN MATCH.—The return match between the Milwaukee and Chicago Cricket Clubs will be played in this city one weeks from to-day.

FIRE.—One half of the brewery, at Two Rivers, owned by Kauffman & Kraus, was destroyed by fire on Thursday night.

ARRIVED.—The schooner Nebraska arrived at Buffalo, with a cargo of produce from this port, on the 15th inst. She made the trip in six days.

EQUINOCTIAL.—An old-fashioned equinoctial storm, accompanied with thunder and lightning, set in during the latter part of Saturday night, and continued with interruptions until last night. A large quantity of rain has fallen. It cleared off fine this morning, and the weather is now cool and pleasant.

Barstow against the Maine Law.

Our authority is the following paragraph, which we clip from the State Temperance League, of Saturday last:

TAKING THE STAND.—We are credibly informed that Mr. Barstow, the democratic candidate for Governor, on his recent visit to this city, pledged himself to the Free Trade Society, if elected, to VETO any probibitory liquor law that may be passed by the Legislature. We have nothing to do with the candidates of parties personally, but it is proper that their views upon the important question of Temperance Reform now before the people of Wisconsin should be known, and we therefore give Mr. Barstow the full benefit of his opinion and avowed purpose. As other candidates for the Executive Chair come before the people for their support, we shall endeavor to ascertain and make known their views upon the "Maine question."

For Governor, Nelson Barrere; Lt. Gov., Isaac J. Allen; State Treasurer, Henry Brachman; Sec'y of State, Nelson H. Van Vorhes; Att'y General, Wm. H. Gibson; Supreme Judge, Franklin T. Backus; Supt. Board of Public Works, John Waddle.

VERMONT.—The House of Representatives will stand—Whigs, 100; Democrats, 80; Free Soilers, 40.

☞ There are 46 prisoners confined in the Buffalo Jail—of which 7 are charged with murder.

☞ The Sixth Anniversary of the capture of the City of Mexico was celebrated at New York on the 14th inst.

COL. FORNEY'S Democratic organ will not be started at New York on the first of next month, as was intended.

The Fruits of Hard Labor and Enterprise.—Our readers have undoubtedly all heard of the Harlem Lake, in Holland.

This Lake has recently at an enormous expense been pumped dry by the use of a large number of pumps, driven by steam.—About 1900 acres of the land thus drained was lately sold at auction for $230,000. One person, the Rev. Mr. Van Voorst, a protestant clergyman of Amsterdam, bought 1400 acres for the sum of $192,720. It is by such and kindred enterprises that Holland has, as it were, raised herself from the waters and built up a rich, powerful and commercial nation.—Sheboygan Sec.

Foreign News by the Niagara.

The steamer Niagara which arrived at N. York on the 14th inst., brings the following items of intelligence:

At the moment when all seems settled, and Russia apparently disposed to terminate the crisis, the war party on Tuesday unexpectedly obtained sufficient ascendancy to complicate the negotiations, to cause delay, and giving Russia a new excuse for postponing the settlement.

A hostile feeling against France and England had also sprung up among the Turks.

The present state of affairs is that a meeting of the Grand Council was announced on the 20th, but on demand of the Embassador was held on the 18th.

The note drawn up by the four powers was accepted with modification, it was then sent off to the Czar and would reach him on the 21st of August, so that no answer can be received for some days.

An assertion had been made on the Paris Bourse that the Sultan had concluded to forego the amendments, provided, first, that the Four Powers should guarantee against any new Russian demands; second, that an order to evacuate the principalities be given before an Embassador leaves Constantinople for St. Petersburgh.

A rumor is, that Turkey is willing to have the Principalities formed into several States, and under the protection of the Four Powers.

Appearances in the French market indicate a further reaction in breadstuffs. After the recent extraordinary improvement, the price of bread was not to be raised during the first week of September.

Reports say that the crops in France will be better than was expected.

A despatch from Athens states that Thebes had been almost destroyed by an earthquake.

Austria will send two more war steamers to Smyrna.

Foreign News.

BELGIUM.—A riot occurred at Liege on the 30th August owing to the high price of grain, but it was speedily checked. Vain attempts have been made to excite similar disturbances at Ghent and Brussels.

It was believed that Government would not prohibit the export of corn, but would temporarily open the ports if required.

SWEDEN.—A public meeting had been held respecting the increased price of Corn, and a Committee of twelve was appointed to report.

ITALY.—The newspapers publish the Decrees, abolishing till December the import duty on Breadstuffs into the Sicilies—also Radetsky's order, prohibiting the exports of Corn from Austrian Italy.

War Question.

Telegraphic accounts from Bucharest, of the 17th August, in the London Times, are to the effect that peace may be considered established, the Austrian Consul-General having received dispatches to the effect that the Russians would evacuate the Principalities in September. It was asserted, also, in Paris, that the fleets of England and France would thereupon return to Malta and Toulon.

Later accounts, however, show that this question is still as unsettled as ever.

Items from the Grant County Herald.

Child Lost.—A little daughter of Mr. Bank, who resides near the head of Middle Grant, in this county, was lost Saturday evening. The child was about three years old, and when last seen was playing near a well without a curb. How awful the suspense of a night under these circumstances to a parent's heart! In the morning the water was drawn out of the well, which is some forty feet in depth, but she was not there. Parties then commenced a general search. Up to Sunday evening their efforts were not successful.

Game.—For some weeks back the air thro' this region has been literally alive with Pigeons—fine and fat. Prairie chickens are not wanting, if we may judge from the returns of dogs, guns, and sportsmen who gather home evenings of late.

Mammoth Apples—Who says Wisconsin won't Produce them?—On Saturday we were presented with a "Gravenstein" apple, from the orchard of Mr. Horace Smead, of Jamestown. The apple measures 13½ inches around. It appears a very fine species, and the tree, just beginning to bear, had plenty more of the same sort.

☞ A report has been received here that Cutler Salmon and party, en route to Oregon, have been massacred by the Indians.

☞ Messrs. Raffauf & Geiger are erecting, at Cassville, one of the largest Warehouses on the Upper Mississippi. Dimensions, 120 feet long by 30 wide; two stories and a basement or underground room of the entire length.

Prof. Daniels.—This gentlemen is with us, though somewhat unwell. As soon as health and weather will permit, he intends to examine the Diggings about Pigeon. His exploration of the mines will certainly be a successful development of their resources, if energy and activity will bring about so desirable a result.

THE WEATHER.—Since the commencement of the harvest season, not a storm or shower has fallen in this region to in the least injure the farmer's crop of grain or hay. How kind an all-ruling Providence! On the evening of Saturday, however, the elements could hold out no longer, and the rain began to descend. The storm yet continues, although but a moderate quantity of water has fallen.—Grant County Herald.

Sale of the Military Reserve at Ft. Winnebago.—We learn from a gentleman who attended the sale that the reserve was finally disposed of—4,033 99-100 acres—for $21,927,36, or an average of about $5.50 per acre. Fort lot, 37 acres, at $61 per acres; Hospital lot, 45 acres, at $37½ per acre; lot east of the Fort, southeast ¼ of the s. e ¼, Sec. 33, sold at $37,15 per acre. A lot on which Agency house stands—sectional line running through said house—north lot, containing 28 acres, sold at $16½ per acre; south lot, containing 14 71-100 acres, sold at $9 per acre. The heaviest purchaser is a resident of our city; but as the sand is rather deep at Portage, it required some fortitude to stay there over two weeks.—Wisconsin of Saturday.

WISCONSIN APPLES.—We yesterday saw in market a wagon box filled with apples, which were being sold by the bushel. This was a rare sight for a Wisconsin market, and no less gratifying than rare. The time, however, is not far distant when fruit will be nearly as common in our market as potatoes. Nearly every improved farm in Dane county has a young orchard started upon it, and very many are beginning to yield the first instalments upon the investment.—Madison Argus.

☞ The Elkhorn Reporter says that Judge Spooner has received at the hands of a large convention, assembled at Delavan, on the 31th ult., the nomination for Judge of that Circuit. We notice that the Rock County papers are down upon Mr. S., and do not like to support him. To our mind this opposition savors much of something out of tune with them—a greediness not very commendable. From our knowledge of his capability, Judge S. deserves to be elected, and will reflect credit to the position, and faithfully perform its duties.—Marquette Mercury.

A GENEROUS YIELD.—John Crowley, Esq., of Bristol, in this county, raised, brought to this market, and sold sixty-six bushels of oats, the products of two thirds of an acre of land.

We know of a farmer in Bloomfield, Walworth Co., who raised seventy-five bushels of Canada club (spring) wheat from two acres of land, and we hear of another in the same town who has raised fifty-three bushels of wheat from one acre.—Kenosha Telegraph.

Stroke of Wit.—A stroke of wit, accompanied by a delicacy of insult, was played off by a lady, who was engaged to be married. The intended bridegroom, perceiving her talking for a considerable time, and with much apparent pleasure, to another gentleman, said to her, "I will be revenged of your infidelity, and show the letters which you have written to me." "Do," said the lady, "I have nothing to blush for except the direction."

How to pass through Smoke.—In the course of an inquest in London lately, Mr. Wakely the coroner, observed that it would be well to acquaint the public with the fact that if persons in a house on fire had the presence of mind to apply a damp cloth or handkerchief to their mouth and nostrils, they could effect a passage through the densest smoke; but the surest way would be to envelope the head and face completely in a damp cloth.

A HINT.—The Forest City says we once heard Ex-Senator Tom. Corwin remark, that when "he first entered an office to study law, he was the subject of ridicule for every student in town, on account of his homespun dress," but, added he, "I have lived to see every one of them ten times as ragged as I was at that time—and why? I was economical—they were spendthrifts."

M. & M. RAILROAD.—It is now confidently expected that this road will be opened to Stoughton, fifteen miles frrm Madison, early in October. The contractors have already commenced grading the road west from here, and the present appearances are that this will not long be the terminus after the completion to this place.—Madison Argus.

Fatal Railroad Accident.—On Wednesday evening last the locomotive attached to an extra freight train on the Ohio & Pennsylvania Road, exploded when about four miles from Salem, by which accident the conductor and fireman were killed, and engineer wounded.

☞ The three bodies of Mr. W. F. De Wolf's children, who were killed by the accident which occurred on the steamer Bay State, arrived in this city last evening. The bodies will be deposited in the cemetery vault until the arrival of the bereaved and sorely afflicted parents.—Chicago Courant, 17th inst.

☞ The late accident to the str. Georgia was more serious than at first reported.—Her state rooms, hurricane deck and bulkheads were cut up for fuel, all her wood having been washed overboard. Many of the passengers lost their baggage and money.

☞ The Equinoctial, or some other storm has set in, as it has rained almost constantly for the last three or four days; the ground needed, however, having become exceedingly dry and parched, and vegetation began to suffer for want of a moistening shower.—Potosi Republican.

Kenosha Harbor.—There is already a clear channel of eight feet in depth, into our harbor which channel before the close of the season will be deepened to ten feet.—Kenosha Telegraph.

NEVER FAILING REMEDY!!
HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT!

A Cripple sets aside his Crutches after 10 years Suffering.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Thompson, Chemist, Liverpool, Dated August 20th, 1852.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

DEAR SIR—I am enabled to furnish you with a most extraordinary cure effected by your invaluable Ointment and Pills, which has astonished every person acquainted with the sufferer. About 10 years ago, Mr. W. Cummins of Saltney Street, in this town, was thrown from his horse, whereby he received very serious injuries; he had the best medical advice at the time, and was afterwards an inmate of different infirmaries, yet he grew worse, and at length a malignant running ulcer settled in his hip, which so completely crippled him, that he could not move without crutches for nearly 10 years; recently he began to use your Ointment and Pills, which have now healed the wound, strengthened his limb, and enabled him to dispense with his crutches, so that he can walk with the greatest ease, and with renewed health and vigor.

(Signed) J. THOMPSON.

A most Extraordinary Cure of a Dreadful Skin Disease, when all Medical aid had failed.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Hird, Draper, of Keady, near Gainsbro', dated March 1st, 1852.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

SIR—Some time since one of my children was afflicted with dreadful eruptions over the body and limbs. I obtained the advice of several eminent Surgeons and Physicians, by all of whom the case was considered hopeless.—At length I tried your Ointment and Pills, and without exaggeration, the effect was miraculous, for by persevering in their use, all the eruptions quickly disappeared, and the child was restored to perfect health.

I previously lost a child from a similar complaint, and I firmly believe, had I in her case adopted your medicines she would have been saved also. I shall be happy to testify the truth of this to any enquirer.

To Professor HOLLOWAY,

DEAR SIR—Among the numerous cures effected by the use of your valuable medicines in this neighborhood, we may mention that of an old lady living in the village of Preston, about five miles from this city. She had ulcerated wounds in her leg for many years, and latterly they increased to such an alarming extent as to defy all the usual remedies; her health rapidly giving way under the suffering she endured. In this distressing condition she had recourse to your Ointment and Pills, and by the assistance of her friends, was enabled to persevere in their use, until she received a perfect cure. We have ourselves been greatly astonished at the effect upon so old a person, she being above 70 years of age. We shall be happy to satisfy any enquiries as to the authenticity of this really wonderful case, either personally or by letter.

A private in the Bath Police Force, also, has been perfectly cured of an old scorbutic affection in the face, after all others means had failed. He states that it is entirely by the use of your Ointment, and speaks loudly in its praise.

We remain, Dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,

April 6th, 1852. (Signed) WALKER & CO.

The Pills should be used conjointly with the Ointment in most of the following cases:—

Bad Legs	Chiego-foot	Fistulas	Sore-throats

Burns	Chapp'd hands	Glandular	Scurvy
Bunions	Corns (Soft)	swellings	Sore heads
Bite of Mosquitos and	Cancers	Lumbago	Tumors
Sand Flies	Contracted & stiff joints	Piles	Ulcers

	Sore Nipples

Sold at the establishment of Professor HOLLOWAY, 244 Strand, (near Temple Bar,) London, and by all vendors of medicines throughout the United States, in Pots at 37½c., 87c., and $1,50c, each. Whole ale by the principal Drug houses in the Union, and by Messrs. A. B. & D. SANDS, New York.

To the Citizens of Milwaukee!

THE CITIZENS of Milwaukee are cautioned against purchasing LIGHTNING RODS from transient pedlars who are now flooding this city—making false representations in order to effect sales and giving G. W. Mygatt as reference, which was done without his knowledge or consent, and also saying that they are employed by me, and other representations to that effect. I employ no person, either in making sales or putting up rods, and those wishing for a GENUINE article, can procure them of me or G. W. MYGATT, Architect, 227 East Waterst.
